The enterprising proprietor of CHESNUT GROVE Whisky (The Purest Medicinal Agent ever known), has furnished the community a stimulant Pure, Healthful and Invigorating, at the same time a mild, delicious beverage. It is calculated to do away with the vile drugged stuff that is palmed off on the community, and which is injurious to body and mind. In addition to the certificates beneath, he has received a Diploma from the State Agricultural Society, and additional testimony from Dr. Jackson, of Boston, who testifies under oath to its absolute purity.

CERTIFICATES.
Philadelphia, Sept. 9th, 1858.
We have carefully tested the sample of Chesnut Grove Whisky which you sent us, and find that it contains none of the Poisonous Substances known as Foul Oil, which is the characteristic and injurious ingredient of the whiskeys in general use.

BOOTH, GARRET & CAMAC, Analytical Chemists.
New York, Sept. 3, 1858.

I have analyzed a sample of Chesnut Grove Whisky, received from Mr. Charles Wharton, Jr., of Philadelphia, and having carefully tested it, I am pleased to state that it is entirely free from poisonous or deleterious substances. It is an unusually pure and fine flavored quality of whisky.

JAS. R. CHILTON, Analytical Chemist.
Boston, March 7, 1859.

I have made a chemical analysis of commercial samples of Chesnut Grove Whisky, which proves to be free from the heavy Foul Oil, and perfectly pure and unadulterated. The fine flavor of this Whisky is derived from the Grain used in manufacturing it.

J. H. JOHNSON, Editor.

WEDNESDAY.....FEBRUARY 20, 1861.

State Treasurer.

We are requested to announce JAMES H. GARRARD, the present Treasurer, a candidate for re-election at the next August election.

Religious Notice.—Rev. Stuart Robinson D. D., will preach in the Presbyterian church in this city every night this week, at seven o'clock. The public are invited to attend.

The Kilkenny Cats.

The Kilkenny cats, says the Baltimore American, have become famous in story. They now rank among the immortals. These famous cats devoured each other, all but the tails. Such an exploit is by some regarded as altogether fabulous and incredible. We were for a long time ourselves disposed to question its entire correctness. We thought there must be some mistake about it. But the feats performed during the last political canvass and in the discussions which are taking place in various parts of the country on the exciting sectional issues, satisfy us of the truth of it, and put the Kilkenny cats to shame. We have seen no record recently of an encounter of political grimalins in which one has not swallowed the other. After a careful examination of the journals of both parties, we are unable to find one solitary case in which the Kilkenny marvel has not been repeated.

It is needless to recite all the instances, to pile up proof, and swamp our pages with an avalanche of testimony. The reader can consult the newspapers and judge for himself. Mr. A., for example, meets Mr. B. in discussion; a regular political, and sometimes (in discussing slavery), a moral and theological melee ensues; four or five hours are consumed in the wordy war, and the result is given in the organs of their respective parties. According to one account, Mr. A. is the most polished orator of modern times; his wit as keen as the sabre of Saladin; his logic as crushing as the battle-axe of Richard. The whole subject of controversy is at his fingers' ends. The way he handled poor B. was awful. He came down upon him in one continuous blaze of oratorical electricity, piling red hot thunderbolts upon his devoted head, till not a grudge-spot of the wretched man was left. Most of B.'s friends gave every sign of dismay and mortification, whilst others boldly avowed their determination to support the cause so triumphantly vindicated by the unequalled A.

Now let us hear the B. journal. The late discussion between Messrs. A. and B. will long be remembered. B., who combines in himself the vehement eloquence of Demosthenes, the wit of Sheridan, and the satire of Junius, was never in a happier vein than on the late memorable occasion. He had not spoken five minutes before his amazing superiority to his verbose and windy opponent became apparent to every man present. Never in our life have we seen such a thorough demolishing, such a complete and total annihilation of a human being as the unlucky A. suffered at his hands. The slaughter of the Turks at Sinope, the massacre of the infants at Bethlehem, was nothing to it. He seized the ridiculous positions and shallow arguments of his adversary and snapped them as a great double-jointed giant would crack the bones of a new-born babe, or as an anaconda would crush a lamb. Poor A. blushed like a woman, hung his head, and appeared as if he were looking for a hole in the floor to sink through. In spite of his damnable political heresies, we could not help pitying the miserable creature, but the unsparing B. showed him no mercy. He skinned him alive, and then swallowed him whole. When the contest ended, nothing was visible of the wretched victim but the end of his big toe sticking out of the mouth of his devourer. The triumph was complete. B.'s friends set up a shout of victory that made the welkin ring, whilst the cowed and defeated followers of the late lamented A. slunk out of the house to hide their shame in the darkness.

Such is the denouement of every political discussion of modern times. As it is impossible to discredit the statements of either party, we are forced to the conclusion that both accounts are true. It is a confirmation, in all its length and breadth, of the miraculous combat of the Kilkenny cats.

BRIGHT NEWS FROM ARKANSAS.—Senator Sebastian, of Arkansas, who has refused to attach his name to any of the disunion documents issued by other of the Southern Senators and Representatives for the purpose of influencing their States to withdraw from the Union, has lately received the most gratifying intelligence from his State, to the effect that Arkansas will remain true to the Constitution and the laws, and not follow the bad example of her neighbor Louisiana.

MESSRS. BUCHANAN AND CASS.—It is stated that Mr. Buchanan is packing his library, and his housekeeper at Wheatland has orders to be ready for his arrival on the 5th of March. He will be accompanied by General Cass, who is forwarding his furniture, library, and valuable works of art to Detroit, with the exception of some paintings, which are to deck the saloon of his daughter, Madame Limbourg. In all human probability neither of these two aged statesmen will ever again visit Washington.

It is said that Col. Jer. Clemens has been appointed Commander-in-Chief of the army of Alabama. He served in the Texas war, and subsequently with distinction in Mexico.

The Floyd Swindle.

The select committee, to whom was referred the resolution of the House, adopted on the 24th day of December last, directing them to inquire into and report the facts in relation to the fraudulent abstractions of certain bonds held by the Government in trust for the Indian tribes, from the Department of the Interior, and to whom were also referred the communication of the Hon. John B. Floyd, late Secretary of War, and the letter of the Hon. Robt. McClelland, late Secretary of the Interior, have submitted their report. It is too long for our columns, and we gladly spare our readers the perusal of its sickening details. Suffice it to say that Floyd issued acceptances to the enormous amount of over six millions of dollars. Bailey, the clerk from the rattlesnake State, aided with all his distinguished ability. Buchanan has been surrounded by traitors and swindlers, and if the old goose ever had any honesty or sense, he seems to have been drugged and fleeced with impunity. The Treasury is now empty—not enough money to pay the clerks. It has been stolen and no doubt appropriated to "the secession cause." The President found the country in a happy and prosperous condition, with an overflowing Treasury. Look at it now, and all this calamity can be traced to the spite J. B. had towards Douglas, and his attempts to kill him off. Which is the "deedest" now?

[From the Richmond Messenger, Feb. 15th.]

Arming the State.

The Kentucky Yeoman, of the 7th inst., contains a notice of our article upon this subject in our paper of the 1st inst. The Yeoman article has a semi-official tone, and from the free use it makes of the terms "misrepresentation," "insinuation," "falsify," "want of editorial courtesy," &c., we suppose it is from the pen of the Inspector General, although it is not unworthy of the editor.

Our article was based upon the official report of the Quartermaster General, sent forth from the Yeoman office, and the figures we gave were those of the Quartermaster, correctly set down, viz: 11,283 muskets, 3,159 rifles, 2,873 cavalry arms, 58 pieces of ordnance. Does the Yeoman say this is incorrect? No! It says "only 12,000 of the infantry arms are in possession of the State, and that these were in general of a very inferior quality." If by "possession of the State" the writer means in the State arsenal, he is above the mark; and if he has reference to what are in the arsenal and in the hands of companies, he is several thousand below the mark. In regard to the worthlessness of these arms, the Inspector General says: "His [Quartermaster General's] report to me states that a large number of small arms were turned over to him by his predecessor as worthless. On inspecting the arsenal I recommended that instead of drawing the quota of arms due the State, the value of those arms be used in repairing those hitherto deemed worthless. An arrangement for this purpose was made with the General Government," &c., &c. Now, when our article was written, these worthless arms sent to St. Louis to have repaired, had reached Louisville on their return to the arsenal, and no one had a right to infer that all the worthless ones had not been repaired. It is true that many of the rifles and muskets on hand were reported as flint-lock, which the Inspector General desired to have converted into percussion-lock, but these are not put down as worthless. In regard to the loss of any of the public arms, the Quartermaster puts down 12,470 muskets as received from the General Government since the burning of the arsenal in 1836, of which 3,927 were recorded in the hands of the militia, of which 2,613 were in possession of the militia, leaving 1,314 as the number lost, constituting no part of the 11,283 which we set down from the report as available. If in this we are in error, it is the fault of the Quartermaster.

But the Yeoman makes much too do over our statement that the Inspector General favored the expenditure of several hundred thousand dollars to buy arms, build armory, &c.; and gravely informs us that he only wanted $198,000, to which must be added a master armorer's salary, two additional clerks, and a few laborers at the armory, &c., and yet we are "ignorant and falsify." If gentlemen desire not to be exposed, let them quit writing and printing. We said nothing about the patriotism of the Inspector General, but the bad manners of the article in the Yeoman, as well as concurrent facts, do not justify all the claims set up for him. When he was poor and needy, he was taken up by the Government and educated in her Military Academy, upon a pledge of devotion to her service. Becoming rich, he abandons the national service, and is acting politically with a party three-fifths of whom are disunionists. If he is as pure and patriotic as he would have the public believe, he ought to present a different front to it. It is no merit of his that the stars and stripes yet float over all his companies. They are yet the recognized legal emblem. It is a merit for him to intend for them to float there in the distant future.

The Louisville Courier of Monday contains a "sensation" article, which the editor undoubtedly thinks calculated to precipitate Tennessee and Virginia out of the Union. He couldn't get old Kentucky to suck his teat, and he now offers it to Virginia and Tennessee. The New Albany correspondent didn't work much in the Kentucky Legislature, and if we mistake not, "Hutchinson by Boyle" won't "work miracles" in Virginia and Tennessee. A good tale, tho', and like some counterfeit money, would pass very well if it wasn't printed on such flimsy paper.—Leb. Dem.

Mr. Memminger, the champion of South Carolina Free Trade, publishes a communication in the Mercury, in which he virtually advises the abandonment of the free trade idea, which was so efficiently used to promote secession. He proposes an ad valorem duty of ten per cent. on cotton.

BOUTIGNY.—We hope no one will neglect to read the eloquent tribute to the Louisiana member of Congress, in another column.

We owe the gifted and accomplished authoress an apology for having mislaid the copy and thus delayed its publication.

PATRIOTIC MOVE.—The "old soldiers" in the vicinity of Memphis, we understand, are arranging for a suitable celebration of Washington's birthday.

BOULIGNY.*

Hail to the hero! Steadfast for the right
Bouligny stands, like Curtius in the breach,
The desperate madness of our strife to reach,
And soothe to peace with his majestic might.
His Alma Mater, Old Kentucky, stands
To Union, in her loyalty bedight,
With Anderson and Holt links him in light—
O Crescent City, crown him with thy hands!
Brave Lafayette, ally of Washington,
When clasped, in his young manhood, to thy heart,
Knew'st thou that he would act so brave a part?

Saw'st thou his prestige in the Union won?
Thy present vision saw in rest his lance,
Worthy the older chivalry of thy native France!

Roseheath, Ky., February 6, 1861. M. R. M.

*Lafayette was in Lexington, Ky., in April, 1824. Transylvania University was at that date in its most flourishing condition, under the Presidency of Dr. Horace Holley. The senior class received the hero in the college chapel, in the presence of a crowded audience. Several members of the class addressed him, and among others was a youth from New Orleans by the name of Bouligny. Bouligny's speech was in French, and was delivered with great force and point. It was in truth a most eloquent oration; and such was its power upon Lafayette, that impulsively he threw his arms around the young orator, and held him to his heart in a long and fond embrace. I do not know it to be the fact, certainly, but I believe that the youth who was then so ardently embraced by Lafayette is now the man, the hero, the great moral hero of Louisiana, a member of Congress from that State, who refuses to abandon the "Stars and Stripes" of our glorious Republic.

The New York Legislature has passed a law appropriating half a million of dollars for arming the State. The lobby expect to have nice stealings out of the purchase of guns and other things.

The New York Legislature has incorporated an asylum for inebriates. It is located at Binghamton, and although not ready for the reception of patients, four thousand applications have already been made.

HARPER'S NEW MONTHLY MAGAZINE.

CRITICAL NOTICES OF THE PRESS.
TWENTY-FIVE cents buys it—the cheapest, richest, and most lasting luxury for the money that we know. Three dollars secures it for one year, and what three dollars ever want so fast? Put the same amount in clothes, eating, drinking, furniture, and how much of a substantial thing is obtained? If ideas, facts, and sentiments have a monetary value—above all, if the humor that refreshes, the pleasantness that brings a gentle smile and brightens the passage of a truth to your brain, and the happy combination of the real and the imaginative, without which no one can live a life above the animal, are to be put into the scale opposite to dollars and cents, then you may be certain that, if Harper were three or four times as dear, it would amply repay its price. It is a Magazine proper, with the idea and purpose of a Magazine—not a book, not a scientific periodical, nor yet a supplier of light gossip and chatty anecdotes—but a Magazine that takes every form of interesting, dignified, and attractive literature in its grasp.—Southern Times.

The volumes bound constitute of themselves a library of miscellaneous reading such as can not be found in the same compass in any other publication that has come under our notice.—Boston Courier.

The most popular Monthly in the world.—New York Observer.

We must refer in terms of eulogy to the high tone and varied excellences of Harper's Magazine, a journal with a monthly circulation of about 170,000 copies, in whose pages are to be found some of the choicest light and general reading of the day. We speak of this work as an evidence of the American People, and the popularity it has acquired is merited. Each Number contains fully 144 pages of reading matter, appropriately illustrated with good wood-cuts; and it combines in its monthly issue the most philosophical and quarterly, blended with the best features of the daily journal. It has great power in the dissemination of a love of pure literature.—Traveller's Guide to American Literature, London.

No Magazine in Europe or America is so well known, none has half as many readers, and we may safely say, none has received so large a tribute of admiration from the cultivated classes, that delight in a healthy, diversified, elevating periodical literature. It is the foremost Magazine of the day. The friends never had a more delightful companion, nor the million a more enterprising friend, than Harper's Magazine.—Methodist Protestant, Baltimore.

A Practical Treatise for the use of Justices of the Peace, Constables, Sheriffs, Jailers, and Coroners in Kentucky.

By RICHARD H. STANTON, MAYSVILLE, KY.

THIS NEW WORK, WHICH HAS been prepared with unusual diligence and care by the author, is intended to be a complete and perfect guide to Justices of the Peace, and the other officers named above, in the discharge of their respective duties under the laws of the State. Its arrangement is such, that while it presents to the officer a full view of the law which he may be called upon to enforce, whether civil or criminal, it affords him such complete and accurate instructions as to the practical manner of discharging his duties, in each particular case, that it will be almost impossible for the least informed among them to go astray.

Every necessary form which a Justice of the peace, or other officer may require in the course of his official duties, will be found in its appropriate place in the work; and the instructions are so full, perspicuous and clear, that it will be found an invaluable official companion to those for whom the treatise is intended, and a highly useful work to the legal profession, and all others having business with those officers. The author has spared no labor to make it just such a work as is now most needed by the class of officers whose duties are so fully and clearly explained, and his well known accuracy and success will commend it to the hearty patronage of all persons in Kentucky concerned in the administration of the law.

The work contains six hundred and fifty octavo pages, is printed on fine paper, and with large, clear type, and bound in the very best style.
